

Sleek Atherton contemporary offers ‘striking detail’

By Jordan Guinn | January 12, 2018 | Updated: January 15, 2018 8:01am

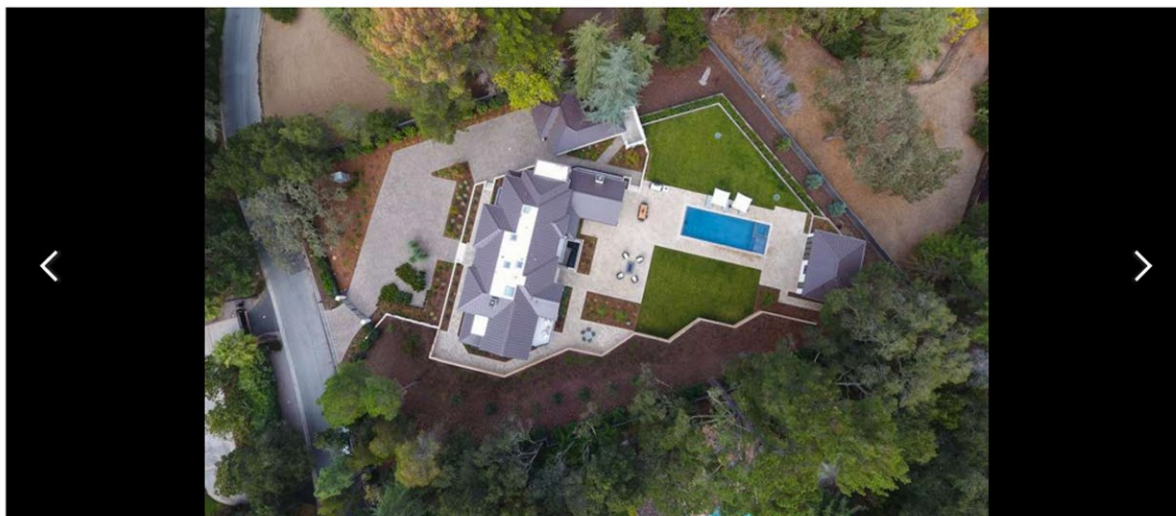

Photo: Blu Skye Media

IMAGE 1 OF 20

This aerial shot showcases 369 Fletcher Drive in Atherton, available for $18.75 million.

Mehdi and Nely Jazayeri went above and beyond when they tore down a 1950s Ranch home and built a sleek contemporary at 369 Fletcher Drive in Atherton.

The home boasts two wine cellars, seven bedrooms and a central staircase with walnut tread.

“They took tremendous care because they built it for themselves. It wasn’t built as a spec development,” said Tom LeMieux of Pacific Union Real Estate, who is co-listing the home with Jennifer Liske for $18.75 million.

Upon completion, the couple realized it was too big for them, LeMieux said. Now they’re listing the multimillion-dollar mansion in the nation’s most expensive ZIP code.

Menlo Park’s Sullivan Design Studio provided the interior design. Their expertise prompted the installation of a bronze starburst chandelier in the foyer, a bookmatched Pelle Grigio marble slab surround for the living room fireplace and Ann Sacks striated marble tile in the library.

A video tour of 369 Fletcher Drive in Atherton, available for $18.75 million. The property is listed by LeMieux Associates.

Media: Blu Skye Media / LeMieux Associates

“There’s striking detail found throughout the house,” LeMieux said.

The kitchen features a pair of islands, both topped with slabs of Taj Mahal quartzite. There’s also a desk, a walk-in pantry and white glass slab backsplashes. A casual dining area offers banquette seating on two sides.

Grandeur abounds in a lavish master suite that features a cathedral ceiling and sliding glass doors opening to a private patio. The suite includes a pair of walk-in closets, a curbless two-person shower, a freestanding tub, separate vanities and two water closets.

Entertainment and exercise options await on the lower level. A theater with acoustic-paneled walls, wool carpeting and electric leather recliners beckons the screening of a favorite film, while the fitness center’s custom rubber floor and full wall mirror provide the ideal space for a workout.

The lower level also includes a wine-tasting area with two temperature-controlled wine cellars with expanding custom racks.

Learn more at www.369fletcherdr.com.

Listing agent: Tom LeMieux, Pacific Union Real Estate, (650) 465-7459, tom@lemieuxre.com; Jennifer Liske, Pacific Union Real Estate, (650) 308-4401, jennifer@lemieuxre.com.

Details

Address: 369 Fletcher Drive, Atherton.

Price: $18.75 million.

Features: Brand-new construction in the country’s most expensive zip code. Designed by Andrew Young of Young and Borlik Architects in Palo Alto, the home offers a main residence with seven bedrooms, as well as a detached pool house. A library, office, two wine cellars and a kitchen with two islands highlights the interior.